Happy New Year!

Welcome back everybody, I hope that you all had a peaceful, relaxing and happy Christmas. It has been wonderful to see all the children ready, willing and able to tackle the new term ahead. They have made a brilliant start to this term and have embraced the new challenges given to them this week.

It is extremely cold, at the moment, but with the rising number of COVID cases throughout the country we are having to ventilate the classroom by keeping the windows open. With this in mind, I have advised the children to layer up in order to keep warm. Similarly, if your child has to isolate due to COVID remote learning will be posted on to Google Classroom each day that links to the work in class. Should your child feel well enough please encourage them to access this work so that they can keep up to date with the learning that is taking place in class.

We have started some of the new topics during our three days in school this week. The children have been looking at inherited traits in science and particularly enjoyed creating new characters from Little Miss and Mr Men 'mums and dads'. Unfortunately, there was an audible groan from the class when I told them that they were covering fractions in Maths however they finished the week much happier and were actually excited about doing fraction work and some have even told me that feel 'amazing', 'happy that I can do this work' and 'I'm actually really good at fractions'. What a wonderful way to end our week!

Have a lovely, positive weekend too!
